TO WHOIM IT MAY CONCERN

The David Sheldrick Wildlife Trust undertakes many conservation projects in Kenya, one of which is hand-rearing orphaned elephants and rhinos, if still infants, initially in our Nairobi Elephant and Rhino Nursery, and at aged 2 and older, then In Tsavo East National Park in preparation to enable them to integrate back into the wild elephant community of that Park, (which is the size of Wales, Michigan State or Israel) so that when grown they can lead a normal elephant life back where they rightly belong.

The Trust has used Repello spray and found it extremely effective against flies and, indeed all insects, including the Rhinomusca flies responsible for the filarial parasite on the rhinos which result in itchy lesions. We have used it to control ordinary houseflies that accumulate where the milk is mixed, and in our homes to control an invasion of ants. We therefore have no hesitation in recommending this environmentally friendly repellent to all prospective would-be Users.
